- 10 Icyk, son of Icyk Lewek and Fryda
  - a. 50/347/0/-/4 Birth akta 15 in 1809. Living in house of Jonas Abraham age 50 (#9). Mother is Fryda age 24. The birth is in the house of Jonas Abraham. The record appears to say that Fryda is a "servant in the household of" Icyk Lewek. I can't see anywhere stating that Jonas Abraham is the father. (Later note: the phrase is a "servant in the household" presumably ends up translating to "housewife". It's a phrase used with some records, but not many. In one case that I could trace – the family of Lewek Szai – the father is definitely the name following "servant in the household of". In the current case, that would be Icyk Lewek and not Jonas Abraham. Since the child is named Icyk, perhaps Icyk Lewek died before childbirth.

- 14 Jonas, son of Eyzyk (#13) and Hudes Chaim
- a. 50/347/0/-/4 Birth akta 13 in 1809. Father is lcyk Jonas (although surname appears to be spelled like Tabaczm ... a bit puzzling) and mother is Hudes (her name is what prompts me to believe the father was lcyk Jonas). The birth was in the house of Elias lcyk who presumably is the same person as mentioned in #5 (related to Tanchum). [comment – other references to Eyzyk show up as Eyzyk]

- 17 Jacob Lewek, son of Lewek Jacob and Fajgl Jonas (see #2), married to Hinda Hersz (#226)

Inferred year of birth of Sura is 1791.
  - One issue: another record shows that Jacob Lewek was married to Dwojra. Either Jacob Lewek was remarried, or one of the Jacob Lewek's isn't the descendant of Fajgl. Actually, there is yet another Jacob Lewek that shows up as married to a Frajda Hersz.

Happens in house 91. Witnessed by Leyzor Abraham and Jacob Wolek age 30. Some comments: (a) Jacob Wolek may be the son-in-law of Leyzor Abraham (see #47 and #54) (b) Rywka Hersz is the name also of the wife of Mordka (#28), son of Leyzor Abraham. I'm guessing Mordka and Meyer are the same – perhaps a double name or perhaps a clerical error. (c) Laia was presumably the name of Meyer's grandmother. Unfortunately, this reduces the likelihood that Abraham was the father of Mosze Chaim Ajbeszyc of Kozienice (whose parents were Abraham and Szajndla).

Laia was the mother of both Leyzor and Jonas, whose birthdates differed by 20 years. Potentially Abraham remarried after the birth of Jonas, in which case Mosze Chaim would have been born after about 1760.

It seems likely that "Lachman Wulf" is the same as "Nachman Wulf, son of Jacob", but as of 10/20, I'm still not sure. House number 5.
  - b. Died before 1855 since he's not listed as the one living son, in Meyer's death record (#59)

(Comment – this should be the same Hebrew name as Juda, so it’s a bit surprising that the name appears twice as children of Ezyk and Frymet. In that record, as well as this, Bajla appears to have named a son after her father – but two names appear. I’ll interpret this as having her father named Szlama Icyk. 133 Leib Zelig Prusak, son of Meyer and Ruchla (#126), married to Maria Ruchla daughter of Hersz Icyk

- a. From death record #13, Leib Zelig is the brother-in-law of Ezyk. (His father's name Major is given in record #129 and his surname Prusak is given in some records of his children.) This either makes him the brother of Ezyk's wife Hudes or the husband of Ezyk's sister. Since Hudes' father is named Meyer that strongly favors the interpretation that Leib Zelig is her brother. If Leib Zelig were, instead, the husband of Ezyk's sister, then he would probably be older than her, and based on the likely death date of Jonas, he would be born before 1770. So we conclude that Leib Zelig is the brother of Hudes.

Notes about records that may be relevant but that aren't documented above

- 1 As of 01/06/2016, I can't identify the person Wulf Neyman who appears in birth record #171 of 50/347/0/-/24 and whose age is given as 45. His wife is named as Eschi (?) Israel. The birth was witnessed by Abraham Zatok (#91). If we assume, as seems reasonable, that all Neymans in Drobin descend from Wulf (#68), who died in 1827, then one would assume that there wouldn't be any Wulf Neyman descendants born before 1827. Wulf (#68), at time of death in 1827, was married to Bajla (#68). He was also married to Bajla when Szlama (#74) was born in 1800. All in all, considering the age of Wulf and the fact that he was married to Eschi Israel, it would seem that he is not the same as Wulf (#68), nor is he as descendant of that Wulf. There is one other record that appears to be of the same person. 50/347/0/-/23 death record 58 of Jacob, son of Ester Jacob and Wolek Nejman. The wife is conceivably the same in both records although in one, her father is Jacob and in the other, her father is Israel. Surprisingly, there aren't any other records pre-1825 that are candidates for these people. One vague possibility would be that Wulf Neyman was originally Nachman Wulf (#1).
- 2 There is a marriage record, 50/347/0/-/22 , akta 1 in 1822, in which Ruchel Tekla, age 20, daughter of Haim and Mindel Hersz, marries Zelig Icyk Brac, age 21. It appears that Mindel died in 1807. Ruchel was born about 1802. Witnesses include Jacob Ber and Israel Litman, both age 30. I hypothesize that Mindel Hersz is a later wife of Lipman, since the bride is born approximately 1802. It would be a great stretch to assume that Mindel Hersz gave birth to Jonas (#22) in 1774 [and Israel, even earlier before 1766] in and then also in 1802. Note that Jonas has a son Hersz (Naftali), so there is a very far flung possibility that Mindel was his daughter.
- 3 There is a marriage record in Drobin in 1885 (akta 8), of the wedding of Baruch Lis, son of Mendel and Hawa Borensztejn. Mendel's death record is in 1883 in Raciaz and his parents are listed as Ksil and Itta Lis. I can't connect this family line to the rest of the Drobin Lis family line. Lis is a fairly common name in Plock province and in Raciaz, so possibly this is a different Lis family and I haven't documented it further in this report.

- 4 In Plock (which is reasonably close to Drobin), there was an Icyk Ajbeszyc born approximately 1770, and who had sons Szmul and Jonas. This Icyk is definitely not the same as Ezyk Iwan (#13) since Jonas (of Plock) was born before the death of Ezyk's wife Hudes (but Jonas's mother is listed as Fajgel). I have checked other possible relatives in Drobin and can't make any connections. Still, it seems worthwhile to keep the possibility open.
- 5 In Szrensk, there is a married couple Benjamin/Dwojra with surname Goldsztejn or Majlech. I gradually came to the conclusion that this was not the Grinberg/Goldszlag couple (#350). One of the records (of the birth of Laia – birth record 1846 akta 2) is signed by L. Grynberg, which was another reason I originally had thought this couple was the same as in #350. It should be mentioned that Dwojra (in the Goldsztejn/Majlech couple) was the daughter of Medel or Mendel.

Anecdotal Information

- The official town name is Drobin. I haven't found much information on the internet about Jewish life in Drobin. There is a somewhat lengthy article on a site about the Drobin Jewish cemetery (<http://www.iajgsjewishcemeteryproject.org/poland/drobin.html>) "First mentioned in 1487, the first Jews settled during the second half of the 17th century. Fires from 1762-1768 destabilized the economy with the Jew engaged trade, labor, or brewing/distilling. A kehilla dates from at least 1757 when Rabbi Abraham Guttmann signed a Cherem (ban) against the Frankists. Around the mid-18th Century, a wooden synagogue was constructed. The Jewish population declined during the 19th century, but increased in the 20th."
- In the notes below, I summarize the family history of Goldszlag as derived from the vital records. This is similar, but not exactly the same as the anecdotal evidence which follows. Heshel has sent email with the following information: " I do have additional information on Drobnin which I probably mentioned to you at the time that I was looking at the book "Gevuras Yonasan" The introductory genealogical section was authored by a certain Yakov Chaim GOLDSZLAG who traced himself back to Jonasan of Drobnin as follows: he was the son of Yechiel Michel GOLDSZLAG (b ca 1830), son of a boy GOLDSZLAG (b ca 1805), son of a boy GOLDSZLAG (b ca 1780), son of Jakob EJBESZYC (b ca 1760) son of Yehuda Leib EJBESZYC (b ca 1740) son of Jonasan of Drobnin. In other words, this Yakov EJBESZYC had a son who adopted the surname GOLDSZLAG."

(BEGINNING OF WEB ARTICLE ON GOLDSCHLAK)

Rabbi Yechiel Michal son of Rabbi Avraham the righteous of blessed memory Goldschlak was born on the 12th of Tevet 5591 (1831) in Shrensk (Szreńsk, a town in the Mława district). Rabbi Yechiel was descended from lines of rabbis and learned scholars both on his father's and his mother's side. He was descended from "Baal HaShach"<sup>[64]</sup> my note: see [https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Shabbatai\_HaKohen, documenting Shabbatai ben Meir HaKohen, known as the Shakh] on his father's side and on his mother's side he was a descendant of the saintly Rabbi Yechiel Michal of Niemirów, who was martyred during the "Decrees of 408"<sup>[65]</sup>. His grandfather on his mother's side was Rabbi Chayim Zelig of Shrensk, who was considered one of the righteous of his generation. Because of his great modesty, he rebuffed the many Hasidim that became devoted to him and wanted him to be their Rabi (after the death of Rabbi Shmuel of Kurów) and traveled by himself to the Rabbi of Przysucha, and after he died - to the Rabbi of Kotsk.

Even as a child, Rabbi Yechiel Michal was recognized for his great talents. He wrote of innovations to the Torah when he was a boy to the Gaon Rabbi Akiva Iger of blessed memory. The Gaon was amazed by this prodigy when he discovered his age. Other great sages of the Torah who spoke to him and read his phrases and innovations wondered at his wisdom and expertise in all parts of the Torah. He became well known in many towns and he became "the prodigy of Shrensk". The Gaon who was the author of "Innovations of HaRim"<sup>[66]</sup>, of blessed memory said of him "Our Michal is a greater prodigy than all the prodigies of my time".

When he was seventeen years old, in the year 5608 (1848), Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak was appointed the Rabbi of Kikol, a town in the district of Lipno. He was ordained by the great rabbis, and the author of "Innovations of HaRim" also wrote, "In honor of my beloved friend who is the Rabbi that is incisive and expert, wise and complete in virtues and attributes, a patriarch in his wisdom and tender in his years..."

After Kikol, Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak became Rabbi of his birthplace, Shrensk, and the towns of Poddębice and Ostrołęka. In the year 5625 (1865), he was appointed Rabbi of Sheps. Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak was the rabbi of Sheps for 53 years, and was a rabbi of various towns for seventy years. He passed away at the age of 88 on the 21st day of Shevat, 5678 (February 3, 1918).

The community of Sheps paid him great respect when he passed away. On the day of the funeral, the caretaker of the synagogue went throughout the town to call everyone to the funeral of the Rabbi. There were very many people at the funeral, and the eulogies were made at the old Beit Hamidrash, the new Beit Hamidrash, and at the synagogue. During the eulogies, all the prayer houses, including the women's sections, were full, with a great many people outside. The eulogizers were Rabbis from the area who came to the Rabbi's funeral. They talked about the greatness of the rabbi in the Torah and his wisdom and of the great loss to the town and the whole area. At the request of the Chevra Kadisha [Funeral Society], the Mikve [ritual bath house] was heated on the day of the funeral, and all the members of the society immersed themselves before the "purification". The funeral society ordered a new spade in honor of the deceased, which was burned immediately after the interment.

In later years, his grandson, Rabbi Yehudah Hashil David, the Rabbi of Sheps, erected a sepulcher above his grandfather's grave.

"The Gaon Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak the Righteous of Blessed Memory, Chief Judge of the Rabbinical Court of the Community of Sierpc"

"A few days ago the well-known Gaon Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak passed away. He had been the Rabbi of Sierpc (Plotzk District) for over fifty years.

"The deceased was the oldest rabbi in all of Poland, and was recognized all over the country for his knowledge of Torah and good deeds. He was born in Shrensk in the year 5591 (1841). As a child, he already carried on a scholarly correspondence with Rabbi Akiva Iger of blessed memory, who was amazed at the child prodigy and esteemed him highly.

"The deceased was already ordained Rabbi of Kikol at the age of seventeen and a half with the blessing of the great Warsaw rabbis and the author of 'Innovations of HaRim' of blessed memory. Later he became Rabbi of Shrensk, Poddębice and Ostrołęka. From there he went to Sierpc (in the year 5625). The deceased led great Yeshivot in all these towns, which instructed many great scholars and rabbis.

"In addition to his outstanding knowledge, the deceased was great in virtues and good deeds. He was also admired for his clear language, and among the many compositions that he left concerning law and myth, there are some Hebrew books about "Bchinat Olam" ["An Examination of the World"], "Sefer Ben-Sira" ["The Book of Ben-Sira"], and Lutzato's "Layesharim Tehilla" ["Praise to the Honest"].

“May his soul be wrapped with the bundle of life.”

In addition to the praise heaped on Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak, it should be added that he was a lover of Zion. He also supported the Zionist movement, in its religious form, when it first appeared. It was only at the express command of the Rabi of Gur that he withdrew his support.

We present below an excerpt from an article titled “Talks with Admorim [Great Rabbis and Teachers] in Poland about Zionism” by Avraham Green (Ben-Gurion's brother) that appeared in the Tel-Aviv newspaper “HaAretz” on the 29th of Elul 5695 (September 27, 1935). He tells about Rabbi Yechiel Michal's desire to support the Zionist movement, and his refraining from doing so because of the command from Gur.

The author of the article tells of a delegation of Zionist rabbis that included Rabbi Yitzhak Yaakov Reines of Lida and Rabbi Rashi Rabinowicz of Sopotskin that went (on the 1st of the Month of 5660, 1900) to the Admorim of Gur and Sochaczew to try to influence them to stop their opposition to Zionism. In the rest of the article, he states:

“As stated above, the two Zionists from Plonsk, Eizik and Esterson, returned to their homes already on Tuesday, after the meeting at the home of Mr. Yasinowski. That same Tuesday, the elderly Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak of Sheps returned to his town from Gur. He was the author of many well-known books, and had rested there on the Sabbath in the court of the Rabi of Gur as one of his most respected followers. He did not know anything about the trip of our Rabbis there. On his way to Sheps, the Rabbi happened to meet the above Mr. Eizik, whom he had known for some time, on the train. The Rabbi turned to Mr. Eizik with great joy and welcomed him as a guardian angel. Mr. Eizik marveled at the Rabbi's words, and what was behind them. The Rabbi answered ingenuously that he had visited their Rabi in Gur the previous Saturday. On Monday, as they were taking leave of each other, the Rabi asked him if he had already signed the document at the house of one of their associates, whom he named. When he answered that he had not yet signed, the Rabi ordered him to go there and sign it. The Rabbi, who was accustomed to signing “A License of 100 Rabbis”<sup>[67]</sup>, naively thought that this was the kind of document that the Rabi was referring to. When the Rabbi came to the appointed place, he asked about the man being divorced, and the divorce decree he wants to give. When the person there told him that nobody is being divorced there, and he does not have anything to do with a separation decree, the Rabbi returned to the Rabi and told him that no one asked him to sign “A License of 100 Rabbis” such as the Rabi had ordered. The Rabi told him that he had misspoken, and did not mean that he should sign such a license today. He had intended for him to sign the prohibition against Zionists and Zionism that had been prepared at the house of the man where he had been ordered to go. “Of course”, added the Rabbi, “I was forced to return to the man's house and sign this prohibition”. Twelve rabbis had already signed, among them Rabbi Ephraim Lubiner, a townsman of his (Eizik was born in Lubien). The Rabbi recounted the substance of the prohibition, which agreed with the contents relayed after the Shavuot holiday by one of the followers of the court, Mr. Elevski.

“The Rabbi continued that when he had received the public appeal from the Rabbi of Sopotskin in favor of Zionism, he sent him a long letter praising the idea. (The Rabbi of Sopotskin had already published hundreds of letters like that in the newspapers.) So when the Rabi of Gur's prohibition becomes public, and the Rabbi of Sopotskin will publish his letter in support of Zionism, the wild Hasidim in his town will throw rocks at him and make him out to be a heretic. At his age, he does not have the strength to oppose them and struggle with them. Because of this he asked that Mr. Eizik write to the Rabbi of Sopotskin and request that he not publish his letter until things quiet down.”

Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak was not only a great scholar, but also the author of many books, a master of language and poetic phrasing. He wrote many books on Jewish law and literature, faith and thought, homiletics and commentaries, poetry and verse. But only a small part of his compositions ever saw the light of day. Most of them were lost with the loss of the community of Sheps.

A book called “Imrleftai Emet” [“Truthful Utterances”] was published in Piotrków in the year 5681 (1921). It contained the commentaries, new interpretations, and rulings that Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak would write on the blank pages at the beginning and the end and in the margins of the inner pages of the bound books in his library. These notes were collected by the Rabbi's son, Rabbi Yaakov Chayim Zelig. (He was the Rabbi in Tcheroinisk and Lubraniec, and later a teacher in Warsaw. He began collecting the notes when the Rabbi was still alive.) The editor, collector, and publisher presents a list of the books his father wrote in the introduction. These are:

- a. An exegesis of the Book of Psalms. Entitled “Zion” and “Jerusalem”. (Printed in the year 5643 [1882])
- b. An exegesis of the Book of Ecclesiastes, entitled “Eyes to See” and “A Heart for Knowledge”. (Printed in the year 5643 [1882])
- c. An exegesis of the Song of Songs, entitled “Eyes To See” and “Ears to Hear”.
- d. An exegesis of the scroll of Micah, entitled “Bread of Tears”.
- e. An exegesis of “Tamni Api”<sup>[68]</sup>, entitled “Eight Garments”.
- f. The Book of Illuminations, in seven parts:
  1. Called “Leave and Return”, collects all the 613 commandments in one place,
  2. Called “The Major Illumination”, collects all the positive commandments in one place.
  3. Called “The Minor Illumination”, collects all the prohibitive commandments in one place.
  4. “The Light of Solomon”, collects all the commandments pertaining to the “Tzitzit”<sup>[69]</sup>.
  5. “The Light of Sabbath”, as above for Sabbath commandments.
  6. “The Light from the Darkness”, as above for commandments prohibiting superstitions.
  7. “The Light of Saints and the World”, as above for commandments pertaining to circumcision.
- g. Exegesis of “Midrash Rabbah”<sup>[70]</sup>, entitle “The Great Secrets of the Saints”.
- h. An explanation of the “Agadot HaShas”<sup>[71]</sup>.
- i. Innovations and casuistry and long opposing views on aspects of HaShas.

- j. Long commentaries on myths on the order of times of the year.
- k. Questions and answers on the order of the four parts of the Shulchan Aruch.
- l. "Pure Sayings". Notes on the holy book "Fragments of the Tablets". (Printed in the year 5671 [1910].
- m. This book "Imrai Emet" ["Truthful Utterances"] has two sections. The first is a collection of the various innovative pronouncements taken from the pages at the beginning and end of the bound books in his library. The second part is a group of commentaries and notes copied from the inside pages of these books.
- n. The book "Crown of the Torah". Verses of the 613 commandments D'Aurita<sup>[72]</sup> and the seven D'Rabanan<sup>[73]</sup> using the initials of the seven commandments, as in the book "Oharot" of Rabbi Sa'adia the Gaon, and the poetic commandments of Rabeinu Yonatan of blessed memory.
- o. The book "Precious Stone". "Pirkei Avot" ["Chapters of the Fathers"] transcribed into biblical language in verses such as in the Book of Proverbs, the book of Ben-Sira, and the book "Proverbs of the Sages" by Rabbi Shimon ben Gvirol and similar books.
- p. The book "Proverb of the Ancient". Pure poetry about Adam and Eve and the incitement of the serpent. It shows the glory of god with polemic, using verse and questions and answers laden with all the objects of homiletic interpretation, such as in the book "Praise to the Honest" by Rabbi Moshe Chayim Lutzato, the righteous of blessed memory.
- q. The pamphlet "The Prayer of the Memin" as in the Memin<sup>[74]</sup> requests at the end of the book "An Examination of the World", with the addition of poetic phrases, riddles, and songs.
- r. The pamphlet "A Sign for the Good". Keys to the Holy Zohar<sup>[75]</sup> with amendments from all the biblical verses it contains.

"He composed some of the works as a youth, such as the books "Crown of the Torah", "Proverb of the ancient", and "Precious Stone" Others he wrote as a young man, after having reached the age of eighteen, such as the books "Bread of Tears" and "Eight Garments" which is about the "Tamni Api". This also applies to his commentaries on homiletics and innovations on the six books of the Mishna, and his long sermons, which he wrote as a young man in Kikol, Shrensk, Poddębice, and Ostrołęka. This period did not last for eighteen years, and a few of these were written in his middle years, after he came to the town of Sheps at the end of the year 5625 [1865], when he was thirty-five. But the commentaries on the Psalms, Ecclesiastes, and the marginal notes were written when he was 46 or 47, and the questions and answers were written in the last years of his life."

This book, "Imrai Emet" ["Truthful Utterances"] contains two decrees that Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak issued on local matters.

The first decree (page 138) is on the matter of "Ezrat Nashim" [women's gallery in the synagogue] that was built larger (closer to the eastern wall) than allowed for in the sale of seats in the approved plan. The complaints and grievance came from both the men (that the added ceiling blocks the light and air) and the women (that the extra construction lessens their space and their view of the lower level). The Rabbi was asked if it is permissible to neutralize the extra construction that is part of the synagogue. After long negotiations, the Rabbi decided that to allow the demolition of part of balcony (“Ezrat Nashim”) that was not built according to the plan, on condition that it does not weaken the whole building.

The second decree (last page) is about transporting the dead to the cemetery. It was the custom in Sheps to carry the deceased on a bed of ropes tied to two poles, with the poles being broken after the funeral and buried with the deceased. The Rabbi was asked if this could be changed to a permanent bed made specifically for this purpose and fitted with legs. And if it was permissible to transport the deceased in a carriage pulled by horses, as was customary in many communities? After long deliberation the Rabbi permitted transporting the deceased on a permanent bed, or transport by carriage, because there is no disrespect to the dead here, but just the opposite, it is a case of honoring both the dead and the living.

Rabbi Yechiel Michal Goldschlak wrote short paragraphs in the monthly journal devoted to the Torah, “Shaarei Torah” [“Gates of the Torah”] that was published in the years 5663-4 [1903-4]. In Pamphlet 4, page 117, paragraph 45, he comments on various matters of Jewish law found in various books. He agrees with some of them and adds some remarks, and he objects and contradicts others.

- From <http://hamodia.com/columns/day-history-17-avaugust-13/> Harav Shmuel Eibschutz, zt”l, Rav of Apta
  - Born in 5514/1756, Harav Shmuel Eibschutz was the son of Harav Naftali Hertz (#1), related to Harav Yonasan Eibschutz, and a descendant of the Megaleh Amukos.
  - Reb Shmuel learned under Harav Akiva Eiger for a number of years.
  - After settling in Vorka, he was attracted to the ways of Chassidus and traveled to the court of the Maggid of Kozhnitz. As was customary among Chassidim, they didn’t wear woolen clothes because it was possible that they contained shaatnez, an issur d’Oraisa. Reb Shmuel, who came from a non-Chassidic background, wore woolen clothing, but upon joining the Chassidim, he changed to silk garments.
  - Later, in Posen, he met Harav Akiva Eiger, who asked him why he wore silk and not wool. Reb Shmuel explained the opinion of the Chassidim. At once, Harav Eiger ripped off his woolen garment, exclaiming that he was shocked that he hadn’t thought of this issue himself. It is related that Reb Akiva Eiger stood there, waiting until he was brought new garments free of any halachic issues.
  - Reb Shmuel also went to the court of the Chozeh.
  - He was appointed Rav in Vorka, where he served for 38 years. Later, in 5595/1835, he became Rav in Apta, a post he held until his petirah.
  - Reb Shmuel was niftar on 17 Av 5600/1840, at the age of 86. He was buried in Apta.
  - His sons were Reb Berish, Rav in Zelichov; Reb Efraim, Rav in Piaseczna and Sulifa; Reb Mordechai; and Reb Simchah. Among his famous talmidim were Harav Yissachar Ber of Radoshitz and Harav Yaakov Aryeh of Radzimin, who grew up in Reb Shmuel’s home.

- From the many manuscripts of his chiddushim, only the one on Torah was published, under the name Toras Shmuel. His chiddushim on Shas were never published, except those on the sugya of Kavsah in maseches Shabbos, which were printed at the back of Toras Shmuel. The sefer was highly regarded by many of the generation's Gedolim and received many glowing haskamos.

The Siercper rabbi had a son, who was a gaon [rabbinic genius], Rabbi Yaakov Zelik Goldszlak, who was the author of many books. In his youth, he was the rabbi in Lubraniec. There had been a dispute against the rabbi, with slander to the authorities. There was a suspicion that the cantor had become involved in the slander. At the end, Rabbi Yaakov Chaim Zelig had to move away. He became a rabbinic decisor in Nalewkes in Warsaw, and remained there in great honor until the end of his life.

- FROM THE KOZIENICE YIZKOR PAGE 302 (AS POSTED ON GENI)

<http://www.jewishgen.org/Yizkor/kozienice/kozienice.html>

"The second family, Weinberg, as I mentioned above, was descended from R' Lipa Yona, a vigorous follower of the Kozienice Maggid. He was a prominent wine merchant, who traveled occasionally to Leipzig and Danzig, and was connected with nobles and foreign merchants. He was the wealthiest Jew in the Radomer area and a great philanthropist. After his death, his son, R' Gedalia, followed in his father's footsteps. He raised his children to be religious and worldly. Some were learned, and in town were called wild non-believers. The oldest son, Heshel, who came from Warsaw, founded a Yiddish school (in which I was a student) and secretly the "Bund" Org. of Workers. In 1905, he organized a large meeting in the House of Study, with the participation of delegates from Radom. That same night he had to flee the city, because of informers, and his end was: Siberia."

- FROM EMAIL OF YAAKOV PINKOVICH

Unfortunately I don't have much information on Neiman family. My grand father Tzvi Hirsh Neiman was the only survivor from his big family. He passed away a few years ago, and I take the story of the family with him. All I know, Tzvi Hirsh Neiman was born in Poland in a small town named Drobin to a family of skins dealers. He fled toward Russia at the age of 16, about 1936, the rise of the Nazis. To Saratov region in Russia. His father was Avraham Yehuda Leib Neiman. All his children and wife (except Tzvi) were killed in the Holocaust, perhaps in Drobin perhaps in the Warsaw ghetto. I know he had a relative in Israel named Levin Tzvi. If something seems connected, I would love to have your family tree to check missing information.

- FROM STANLEY GINSBERG CONVERSATION AND EMAILS
  - "I asked <Stanley's mother> about Tanchum and also if she could confirm that Elias' first wife was named Chava; she couldn't. Also, she wasn't certain that her uncle, whom she only knew as "Joe" was named Yossl -- it's pure surmise on her part and, it seems to me, could just as easily have been Yonah."
  - "Right after we got off the phone I phoned my mother and asked about my grandfather's siblings. It turns out that in addition to his sisters he had two brothers, Avrum and (we think) Yossel. Avrum was the oldest, born around 1870, so it would make sense that Elias would name him for his father."
  - "Family lore is that Elias was well advanced in years when he started fathering children, so thus far everything fits. My cousin has photos of Elias and Perel; I'll see if I can get copies."
  - "Elias (your ref 1.1.1.9) married my great grandmother Perel (last name unknown) (1853?-ca.1910) around 1869/70 when she was 16, following his divorce from Hawa (Chava) some time after 1865 for her failure to bear children."
  - Stan told me that according to family lore, Elias was an itinerant glazier who travelled from shtetl to shtetl and came home for Shabbas every week.

- Regarding Stan's grandfather: "he was indeed a Kohen, both according to his own practice and his gravestone .... my guess is that the ship's manifest notwithstanding, he identified himself as such at Ellis Island."
  - "My grandfather Kodner, who came from Divin in Grodno guberniye (modern Belarus) came over with his stepmother and several step siblings named Ginsberg. Family lore has it that in order to avoid having to explain two Kodners (my grandfather's brother Nathan), his stepmother identified him as a Ginsberg. For what it's worth, I question that story, since he was in his early 20s when he immigrated, and most likely alone, if the ship's manifest is to be believed. Once in NYC, he stayed with his stepbrother Max Ginsberg on Ludlow Street. At that point, I believe he probably adopted the name Ginsberg."

  - So many questions. This really is a matter of connecting a lot of random dots. It would be interesting if, in fact, this is an indication that the Drobin Szpiras were Kohanim.
- FROM CORRESPONDENCE WITH LEN (LEONARD) GIVEN
    - My Great Grandfather (Morris Given {Ivan}) was born in Poland and came to the US in 1884 with his oldest son, my Grandfather, Charles who was 2 years old. I doubt it was from Drobin as Morris told me stories about his youth. The authorities were inducting the Jewish boys at age 14 into the army and putting them on the front lines to take the bullets. They came to his village to induct the boys and a neighbor hid him in their attic. A soldier climbed up to check the attic and he was so scared he hit the soldier on the head with a hammer and killed him. He then ran away. He later married and then brought his young son and wife to America. They ended up settling near Gary Indiana and eventually opened a General store. Morris, even though he didn't have much education, acted as a negotiator to represent the Polish workers in Gary with their pay negotiations and court cases.

My Grandfather, Charles, had 4 younger siblings – Sam, Barney, Lillian and Louis. He and Sam decided to go out in the world and earn their living around 1900. They traveled to San Francisco and got jobs selling shoes. After several years, they were bored and went to Santa Barbara, CA. A few years later they decided to go back to San Francisco on the train and arrived to see the city burning (1906 quake). Soon thereafter they wired a friend in San Antonio, TX and asked about a job. He got them jobs selling shoes and they accepted. Around 1909 they decided to go back to San Francisco and the train stopped in El Paso, TX for 24 hrs. to load coal/wood and water. Charles did not like this wild west town – they were still having gun fights in the streets, but found a job selling shoes during the wait and decided to stay.

In 1914 they opened their own shoe store, Given Brothers Shoes, which later expanded to men's and women's ready-to-wear. At their peak just prior to WWII, they had 32 stores across Arizona, New Mexico, and West Texas. The rest of the family, including Morris, joined them in El Paso and both Louis and Barney joined the business. After the war Sam and Barney left to move to Los Angeles. They opened up Given Manufacturing Company, which later became Waste King (garbage disposals, etc). My father (Edmund) and his brother (Herbert) ended up in Given Brothers. Edmund left the business in 1959 and built the Desert Hills Motor Hotel, Restaurant and Club in El Paso. All 3 businesses – Given Brothers/Waste King/ and the Desert Hills were sold to other parties during the 1960s and early 1970s. Interestingly, Morris came to work every day until he passed on at 94.

I worked at Given Brothers in the warehouse and selling shoes, starting at age 10 on weekends and summers. My Grandfather wanted me to become part of the business, but it wasn't of interest to me. After college I was an officer in the Air Force Strategic Air Command. After discharge I went back to El Paso for two years at my father's request to help him out with some business problems. After that I got a job in Silicon Valley in 1966 and have been here ever since. I shared some commonality with you as before starting The Quest Team, Inc. I was a Director of MIS – I got exposed to computers in the Air Force and started my civilian career as a Systems Analyst.

- My wife, Louise Given (nee Ellis) was born and raised in Brookline. If you have been in the Boston area going back quite a few years, you may know her uncle's sign (a landmark), Elis The Rim Man, <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ygJEzbgOELA> . Her father (a younger brother) had Mac Ellis Tire and Supply on Columbus Ave.

The name I was called by up until I went away to college was Nardo (living in El Paso, most of the families had Mexican maids and we all had Mexican nicknames. My name is Leonard and it became Nardo (Leonardo). When I went to Syracuse no one could pronounce it and I was called Nurdo, Len , Tex, etc. I finally settled on Len and it has been that ever since.

There is quite a substantial Jewish community in El Paso. A large number of the businesses were established in this "wild west" town in the early 1900's by Jewish immigrants coming up through Mexico or migrating from the Eastern US. With the exception of Levi Strauss in San Francisco, most of the cotton jean industry started in El Paso. with the businesses started by those Jewish immigrants.

- I forgot to share info about my children with you. I have 4 children and 11 grandchildren (ages 4-22). My Children are:

- Jacquie Waugh – Age 52 – She has been a teacher of pre-school and early elementary grade children. She and her husband moved to Shanghai almost a year ago, to teach and administer in a British school chain for expats.
- Andrea (Dee Dee) Mori – Age 51 – She is Sr. Director of Accounting Operations and Asst. Controller at a Biomed company in Silicon Valley.
- Stephanie Malatesta – Age 45 – She was Director of HR for several firms in Silicon Valley and set up her own HR consulting business (PavingHR) 18 months ago.
- Curtis given – Age 42 – He is currently COO and VP Operations for an international security consulting firm located in Silicon Valley. He is in the process (confidential) of setting up his own Security firm.

General facts about the Drobin records

- From 1808 through 1825, there are civil records that mix Jewish and Christian records. Starting in 1826, the records are split and Jewish records are filed separately.
- Through approximately 1822, Jewish records are almost all patronymic. There are one or two exceptions.
- Some of the earliest records are split so the Christian records are first listed, followed by the Jewish records. However, the majority of patronymic records are a mix of both Jewish and Christian.
- For most patronymic years, the ratio of Jewish to Christian records is about 10% -- sometimes a bit more. From around 1814 through 1816, there seems to be a smaller ratio. Then in 1817-18, the ratio pops up to between 20% and 25% as records include events occurring in prior years (perhaps the record-takers for 1817-18 realized that they hadn't been taking good records earlier).
- In general, but especially in the early years (through around 1816), age-recording was highly inaccurate. The same person could show up in two subsequent years (in some cases, in the same year) with an age that differs by as much as 10 years and in some cases, even more. Ages were typically reported as a multiple of 10 (e.g. 20, 30, 50) but once in a while a highly accurate (albeit inconsistent from one record to another) age was reported (e.g. 38).
- In the early years – especially pre-1814 – men were often 20 years older than their spouses, and births were reported only to relatively old couples (the women were often reported as 25 or over).
- The patronymic birth and death records include, for the most part, a house number. In post-1817 records, the number is also listed in the indices.
- For records 1826 and later, house numbers are not given.
- All records are indexed
- Post-1826 records show surnames rather than patronymics, therefore there is some difficulty in correlating those records with ones from before 1826

- Post-1826 death records generally don't include names of the children of the deceased (other than cases where one of the children is listed as a witness).
- Some records have Hebrew signatures and some don't. Sometimes the signature appears only to have the first name.

Principles

- My guiding principle with the Drobin records, is to assume that anyone named Jonas is a descendant of Jonas of Drobin (as mentioned in records #1 and #2). For most cases before 1840, this guideline appears to at least be consistent with the information I have. The guideline is further strengthened by the fact that this generates various family branches whose members tend to witness one another's life-cycle events, or to live in one another's homes.
- Certain other names appear rare enough that I have tended to assume they are all related. In some cases, that has led to the inclusion, in this document, of some family trees that I believe are related. Those rare names include:
  - Nachman/Lachman
  - Medel
  - Szmaja
  - Yechiel
  - Tanchum
  - Pinchus
  - Hodes/Chudes
  - Haskel
- In the records used for this document, I have attempted to include names of witnesses that seem to me to be friends or family. I have not been totally systematic about this. Over time, I've come to recognize the names of many individuals as potential family or friends, so that for later records, I might notice that some witness is a family member – but in earlier records, the same name might have appeared in the original films or archives, but since I didn't recognize the name I didn't write it down.
- I have recorded the year in which events are recorded but not the exact date.
- Pre-1826, I have noted every Jewish record in a spreadsheet. I have recorded most names that appear (including witness), as well as their age and the house number, although in time, I stopped including the names of all witnesses. I realized part way through that process, that on occasion, the event was indicated as occurring in the house of xyz – followed by the address of that house. I have recorded that information but inconsistently.
- In the spreadsheet, I did not always record the year of the event. In most cases prior to 1816, the year of the event was the current year, but for the 1816-17 records, many events had occurred as much as 10 years earlier.
- In the spreadsheet, for the earliest years I did not consistently note relationships. My initial goal was to capture all names and ages so that at some later point I could go back and re-examine the record.
- I did not consistently look at signatures to see if anything new could be gleaned.
- Handwriting was often bad, so I know there have been many mistakes recorded

- I have local (on my computer) copies of all pages of Jewish patronymic archives, as well as all post-1826 civil records that I examined. Those post-1826 records were noted in the spreadsheet, and the ones that were determined to be 'of interest' are also included in this document.
- For post-1826 records, I've been guided by the JRI indices, but they are incomplete and in at least one important example, they have errors. For the first of those years, I actually looked at all the Jewish civil records, and made copies of indices through 1830/31. For later years, I've been only looking at records that were discovered in the JRI indices.
- I've attempted in this document to use a single spelling for each individual, even if that individual has their name spelled differently in various civil records. In the 'heading' (underlined) for each numbered record, I use the 'standard' spelling that I've chosen, but when writing out the details of that record I occasionally use different spellings as they appeared in the 'akta' being cited.
- I've also attempted – but not always successfully – to use the same 'standard' spelling even for different individuals if they happen to share the same name. So for example, if one person's name is Leyzor, and another person has the same name, I'll also spell it as Leyzor.
- I have considered the possibility that Icyk and Ezyk were different names and therefore used each of those names as 'standard' spellings, depending on what spelling was most commonly used for that individual.
- In the family tree, I sometimes equate Wulf and Wolek.

General Conclusions or Speculations about Trees and Branches

- 1 Jonas of Drobin (JD) (mentioned for example in records #1 and #2) was presumably Rabbi Jonatan Ajbeszyc, who from anecdotal information is believed to be the son of Aron – brother of Rabbi Jonatan Eybeschuetz (RJE).
- 2 In the family trees in this document, tree #1 includes everyone (or references to other family trees) believed to be a descendant of JD. Some sub-trees are more reliable than others.
  - 2.1 The following descendants of JD have records (or anecdotal information) explicitly stating that their parents were Jonas and Dwojra:
    - 2.1.1 Jacob
    - 2.1.2 Fajgel
    - 2.1.3 Ezyk (he sometimes turns up as a witness of records pertaining to children of Fajgel (above)).
    - 2.1.4 Naftali Hersz (as reported by Heshel)
  - 2.2 The following descendants of JD have one or more descendants (within one or two generations) with the name Jonas:
    - 2.2.1 Daughter married to Jacob Lipman, son of Haim
    - 2.2.2 Abraham
    - 2.2.3 Mosze or his wife
  - 2.3 One other descendant of JD is noted – Tanchum's wife, whose family adopted the surname Szpira. None of his known descendants bear the name Jonas. However, JD is known to have descended from the Szpira family. Furthermore, certain descendants of Tanchum and certain descendants of JD, were found to live in one another's homes or were found to witness one another's civil records. In record #5 (birth of Fajgel Szpira), the event occurs in the house #45, residence of Tanchum, which is the same house as the death of Jacob Jonas (record #1). Also, in record #14, the birth of Jonas (son of Ezyk Iwan) occurs in the house of Tanchum's father-in-law. Later in record #14, Jonas' death is mentioned as being in the residence of his parents at #45 (same as record #1). A possible but unlikely Jonas/Szpira connection is noticed in a Plock record (film 730201 1832 marriage akta 10) where the groom's name is Jonas Szepsor. As a separate comment about this family – it is known (from anecdotal information) that they were Cohanim. Since the male descendants of JD weren't Cohanim, that strongly suggests that the descent from JD is by way of Tanchum's wife.

- 3 JD's son Abraham may be the ancestor of the Ajbeszyc family from Kozenice but more likely (see below), the Kozenice family's matriarch Szajndel is the daughter of JD. The known originators of that family are Abraham + Szajndel, whose sons include Chaskel and Mosze Chaim. In the Drobin records, there is an Abraham married to Lai and they have a child Jonas born about 1769. One hypothesis (the "Abraham Hypothesis") is that Abraham was the son of JD, Lai died around 1769 and then Abraham remarried, perhaps to a resident of Kozenice where his nephew (by his brother Naftali Hersz) lived. The birth dates of Chaskel and Mosze Chaim are consistent with this hypothesis. Another hypothesis, the "Szajndel Hypothesis", is that Szajndel was the daughter of JD and married an unrelated Abraham who coincidentally had the same name as Lai's husband from Drobin. In the Szajndel Hypothesis, there isn't any way to know whether Lai or Abraham was the child of JD.

3.1 Here are the items in favor of the Abraham Hypothesis.

- 3.1.1 Abraham is a fairly uncommon name amongst the Ajbeszyc's so there could be significance to the fact that the name appears both amongst the Drobin family and the Kozenice family.
- 3.1.2 It wouldn't be surprising for several descendants of JD to have migrated to Kozenice.
- 3.1.3 Chaskel named a son Jonatan. I believe it's more likely this son was named after JD, than after RJE. No other Jonatan's are likely candidates for Chaskel to have named his son after.
- 3.1.4 Mosze Chaim named a son Nachman. This name is fairly rare but shows up amongst descendants of JD.

3.2 Here are considerations in favor of the Szajndel Hypothesis.

- 3.2.1 Szajndel was the name of a grandmother of JD
- 3.2.2 The name Abraham, although uncommon in the Ajbeszyc family, is generally common. Therefore, it wouldn't be too much of a coincidence to have an Abraham in-law in both the Kozenice and Drobin lines.
- 3.2.3 The final three of the items favoring the Abraham Hypothesis, also favor the Szajndel Hypothesis.
- 3.2.4 Abraham of Drobin, had a descendant (son of Leyzor) named Abraham, and who was born about 1796. If Abraham of Drobin were the same person as Abraham of Kozenice, then he must have died before 1796. However, according to records, Mosze Chaim had at least two sons prior to the birth in 1810 of his son Abraham. Both of the other sons were, according to records, born after 1796.

If all of those dates are correct, then that strongly suggests that Mosze Chaim's father (Abraham) died after 1796 but before 1810. Chaskel also had a son (Koppel) born after 1796, prior to his son Abraham born about 1810. This analysis is highly dependent on the accuracy of dates, so those bear further scrutiny. First, Abraham son of Leyzor, according to information in #91, was almost certainly born before 1800, with several dates showing he was born before 1796. Let's take his latest birthdate as 1800. Mosze Chaim's son Nachman was, according to some records, born in 1801, and according to other records born in 1797. So he could conceivably have been born before the death of Abraham son of Leyzor. Mosze Chaim's son Israel is generally shown to have an inferred birth date around 1808, but he didn't start having children until 1833. It's therefore feasible that he was born after the death (c. 1813) of Israel Hopsztein, the Maggid of Kozienice, after whom he could have been named. If so, then Mosze Chaim's son Abraham was the second known son – and by the prior discussion, his first son was possibly born before the death of his father. Based on all this, the argument – based on Mosze Chaim's sons – that Mosze Chaim's father had to be different than Leyzor's father, is somewhat weakened. On the other hand, it seems fairly plausible that Chaskel's son Koppel was born after the death of Leyzor's father but before the death of Chaskel's father. I would expect that when a man's father is deceased, that his name would have priority over any other potential name for a son.

3.2.5 [IMPORTANT] Y-DNA profiles were done for Len Given (#544) whose patrilineal line goes back to JD, and for Matt Ellis, my second cousin whose patrilineal line goes back to Abraham of Koziniece. There is no match. Hence it follows – within the bounds of reliability of Y-DNA testing – that Abraham isn't the son of JD. There are two potential sources of error in this analysis. The first has to do with the reliability of the documentation chain showing patrilineal ancestry. I believe this is pretty solid in both cases, at the 90%+ level. The second potential source of error has to do with the likelihood that a man's biological father is NOT the person he claims as his father. If we were to suppose that there is as much as a 5% chance of this occurring, then over the course of 10 generations, there would be a non-negligible probability (maybe around 50%) that two ostensible patrilineal descendants would have mismatched DNA. I'm more inclined to think the percentage is smaller – even smaller than 1%. So roughly speaking, I'd place 75%+ confidence in the DNA conclusion above.

3.3 Other areas of investigation regarding Abraham, are the possibility of a son Jacob (who had a son Chaskel who married in Krakow), and the possibility of a son Szai (who had descendants in Czestochowa, whose names include Abraham).

- 4 JD's putative son or son-in-law Mosze (#137) is likely to be the grandfather of Chaja Sura, progenitor of the Rotenberg Chasidic dynasty. The argument goes like this:
  - 4.1 Anecdotal evidence says she was related to RJE.
  - 4.2 She lived in the home of the Maggid of Kozienice, and one of his disciples was a descendant of JD, so there would be a close connection to the family of JD.

- 4.3 Her father (Isaac Jacob) was a Levite, so neither he nor his father would be related to RJE. Her mother was Pesse. Pesse's father was named Mosze -- and I am hypothesizing that either he or his wife was a child of JD's. The only other candidate relative of RJE would be the mother of Isaac Jacob.
- 5 In considering Chaja Sura, a progenitor of the Gerer dynasty, the name Mosze Chaim appears both in the Kozienice Ajbeszyc family and as a child of Chaja Sura, so a connection seems plausible. Consider the possibilities:
- 5.1 If Abraham is the son of Jonas (that's my assumption), then neither his father nor his grandfathers were Mosze. How about his father-in-law (Szajndel's father)? He could have been Mosze (or Mosze Chaim). Since Szajndel would have to be born before about 1765 – 1770, her father would have to be born before 1745 – 1750. So he could possibly have been Mosze, the son of JD. In that case, Szajndel would have been the aunt (Pesse's sister) of Chaja Sura. Szajndel's husband Abraham would have been her uncle. This theory would be unable to easily explain the origin of the name Chaskel, son of Abraham and Szajndel since one would have expected other descendants of Mosze (#137) to have the name Chaskel.
  - 5.2 If Szajndel (rather than Abraham) was the child of Jonas, then possibly Abraham could have been the son of Mosze son of JD, but for the same reasons as above, there wouldn't be an explanation for the name Chaskel.
  - 5.3 The above two bullets appears to preclude an easy explanation where both Mosze Chaim Ajbeszyc and Chaya Sura, were descendants of Mosze son of JD. However, one possibility would be that Szajndel's mother might have been different than Pessa's mother or, for that matter, different from Ruchla (#126), wife of Mosze (#137).
  - 5.4 Even if Pessa's father Mosze was the son of JD, there might not be any relationship with Mosze Chaim -- son of Abraham and Szajndel.
- 6 JD's daughter Fajgel (#2) and her husband Lewek (#2) were the progenitors of the Goldszlak family. In particular, her two sons Jonas (#45) and Jacob (#17) took the surname Gotszlag. Jacob appears in many records as Assistant Rabbi. Jonas appears as "Direktor". The surname appears to have mutated over time. There are Hebrew signatures early on, where the name is Gotszlag, just as it is in Polish. At later times, the last letter in Polish is sometimes written with a "k". There is also a Polish signature, where it appears that the letter "t" has been replaced by "l". In later years, the records – written by clerks – also sometimes replace "t" by "l". It was tempting, in analyzing the records, to conclude that the so-called letter "t" was actually the letter "l" with a slash through it. However, the consistency of formation of that letter throughout the various records with different handwritings, in addition to the use of the letter "tav" in Hebrew, leads me to believe that there was actually a shift over time, from "t" to "l". These records are consistent with the anecdotal information that Rabbi Yehiel Goldszlak of Sierpc, was a descendant of JD and, by and large, with a genealogy (mentioned above) of Yakov Chaim Goldszlag, as provided in an introductory section to "Gevuras Jonasan". More precisely, the records show the following: Rabbi Yehiel of Sierpc was born in Szrensk in 1830 and his full name was Beniamin Michal Goldszlak. His father was Abraham, born about 1805. Abraham was the son of Jacob born about 1771 and Dwojra (whose father Jacob may have been the son of JD). Abraham's father Jacob was the son of Lewek and Fajgel, both born about 1743. Fajgel was the daughter of JD and Dwojra. Lewek was the son of Jacob, who was the son of Gabriel. Apart from that, Abraham's wife was Chawa Laja, daughter of Michal Zelig, with surname Filat. Also, Rabbi Yehiel of Sierpc was married to Kajla Lewinberg (of Szrensk).

- 7 Family tree #2 is of interest both because of the name surname Koziobrod (#68) mentioned in the death record of Hudes (#68) and because of the surname Neyman, and also the presence of the name Nachman (record #62) born in 1785. My hypothesis is that the name Neyman was adopted from the name Nachman (son of Wulf). One of JD's grandchildren (son of Jacob (#1)) was named Nachman Wulf. As for the name Koziobrod, this appears in the family of Meyer (#155), believed to be a descendant of Jacob (#1). The Neyman family also intermarried with the JD family. The two families appeared as witnesses on one another's records and at times, lived in one another's homes. The name 'Jonas' doesn't appear among descendants (other than those who intermarried with JD's family) so I can't draw the conclusion that the Neyman family descended from JD. However, here is a Conjecture, together with a complete analysis: Lewek (#68) and Hudes (#68) had three children – Wulf (#68), Jacob and W1. Jacob had sons Haim Meyer Prusak (#126) and Ezyk (#147). Haim Meyer (#126) had a son Jacob Jonas (#140) and a daughter Hudes (#13). W1 married Jacob (#1) and they had a son Meyer Nuta (#155) (in most of these notes I'll refer to him as Meyer). He had a son Jacob Jonas (#156). Here are arguments for this Conjecture, and a rating of the strengths of these arguments (from 1 – 3 with 3 as strongest).

7.1 Proximity of houses (houses 89, 90) in early 1800's of Ezyk (#147), Haim Meyer (#126) and Meyer (#155). [strength=1]

7.1.1 Note that Fajgl (#2) and Lewek also lived nearby (house 87). However, their son Jacob died after the birth of either Jacob Jonas (#156) or Jacob Jonas (#140), so there's no clear connection to the Prusak or Koziobrod families.

7.1.2 House #88 doesn't seem to be associated with any known relatives of JD. The most common name shown occupying that house is Israel Abraham, later known as Israel Funkensztajn, born abt 1765. Interestingly, Israel had a descendant in Plock with the name Fiszal Jonas (1876 D akta 103).

7.2 Rarity of the name Hudes suggests she is an ancestor of Hudes (#13). [strength=2.5]

7.2.1 The name is rare in Drobin (shows up 12 times in JRI index), and most instances are related to Hudes (#68) or Hudes (#13).

7.3 Rarity of the name Nachman/Lachman suggests a common ancestor between Nachman (#1) and Nachman (#68). [strength = 2.5]

7.3.1 There are 21 occurrences of the name in the JRI index for Drobin, but quite a few remain unconnected to the family tree of JD and associates. Also, Mosze Chaim Ajbeszyc from Koziobrod, had a son Nachman. There's no clear connection to the families of this Conjecture.

7.3.2 For both Nachmans mentioned, the name Wulf is also prominent.

7.3.3 As a challenge to the comment about the rarity of the names Hudes and Nachman, there is a record (50/347/0/-/7 birth akta 15 in 1810) of Nachman Baruch age 50, plus Hudes Icyk age 45, giving birth to Abraham Icyk. One possible scenario is that Icyk was the son of Lewek and Hudes, and that Baruch was also the son of Lewek and Hudes, so that Hudes Icyk and Nachman Baruch were first cousins.

7.4 Jacob Jonas (#140) and Jacob Jonas (#156) were both descendants of JD [strength=3].

- 7.5 Jacob Jonas (#140) was not a descendant of Jacob (#1) because #141 was born long before #1 died [strength=3]. This implies that Haim Meyer (#126) was not the son of Jacob (#1) [strength=3].
- 7.6 Since Haim Meyer (#126) was the son of Jacob, but not Jacob (#1), then Haim Meyer's father's father is not JD [strength=3].
- 7.7 Since Haim Meyer (#126) was born about 1750, then JD cannot (because of birth year) be a great-grandfather of Haim Meyer [strength=3].
- 7.8 Summing above are the strength-3 conclusions regarding Jacob Jonas (#140) on his father's side: His father (Haim Meyer) isn't JD. His father's father isn't JD. His father's father's male ancestors aren't JD. His father's mother's father (Haim Meyer's mother's father) could be JD. And his mother (Ruchla) could be a descendant of JD.
- 7.9 Ezyk Prusak (#147), from his death record, was born about 1740. As mentioned above, there is an Ezyk Jacob living in house #89 (see record #156), where Meyer (#155) lived. If the Conjecture is correct, then Meyer and Ezyk would be first cousins despite a large age difference. I'll assume that Ezyk Prusak is indeed the brother of Haim Meyer (#126) [strength=2].
- 7.10 Can we eliminate the option that Haim Meyer's (#126) mother was the daughter of JD? If Haim Meyer or Ezyk (#147) was born as early as 1740 (claimed in both of their death records), then their mother could not have been the daughter of JD. If Haim Meyer and Ezyk were born as late as 1755, then their mother could have been born as late as 1738. This would be consistent with the birth of JD in 1720. Therefore the strength of the Conjecture based on the elimination of this possibility is [strength=1.5].
- 7.11 Assuming that Ruchla (#126) is a descendant of JD, then either Mosze (#137) or his wife is the descendant. Ruchla's birth year is fairly consistent across several records as being about 1775. Her parents would have been born before approximately 1758. It is possible, based on this analysis, that Jonas could have been one of their grandparents. The strength of the conjecture based on the elimination of this possibility is [strength=1.5].
- 7.12 Meyer (#155) is a descendant of Lewek (#68) and Hudes (#68) based on the surname Koziobrod [strength = 1.5].
- 7.12.1 Note that Meyer's wife could have been the Koziobrod, otherwise this deduction would have more strength.
- 7.13 The father of Meyer (#155) is Jacob, who had to die before the birth of Jacob Jonas (#156). This is consistent with the possibility that his father is Jacob (#1) [strength=1].
- 7.14 Jacob Jonas (#156) may have been the first male son of Meyer (#155), suggesting that Jonas was the name of one of Meyer's (or his wife's) parents or grandparents [strength=2]. Meyer's father was Jacob and his wife's father was Nussen, so this suggestion leads to the consequence that JD was the father of Meyer's father Jacob, or of Nessa's father Nussen.
- 8 There appears to be a tight relationship between the Koziobrod family of Drobin, and several families in Raciaz. The families in question are Bernbaum, Dancyger and Szpigel. These will need to be investigated separately. One striking example of this involves Nuta Jonas Meyer Koziobrod (#159). He was born about 1838 and married Malka Dancyger (#160) and had a child Rywka Ruchla (#161) born in 1862. In Raciaz, there was a Meyer Jonas Dancyger who married Chaia Sura Bernbaum in 1863. Meyer Jonas was born approximately 1844 which, as we know, is not inconsistent with the birth date of Nuta Jonas Meyer (#159). Importantly, Meyer Jonas was the son of Mordka, who was the son of Meyer. Based on information that I've put together, both Mordka and Meyer could have been the same ages as the ancestors of Nuta Jonas Meyer. Perhaps all of this is coincidence. But a different speculation would be this: Nuta Jonas Meyer's wife Malka died and he took her surname and then moved to Raciaz and married Chaia Sura Bernbaum. One piece of evidence further in evidence of this theory, is that there aren't any Dancygers in Raciaz prior to the above marriage. On the other hand, going against the theory is the fact that there are two children of Nuta (married in Raciaz) and Malka, whose ages – if they are accurate – would have them born later than 1863 (when Meyer Dancyger married Chaia Bernbaum). Independent of the above 'coincidence' is the fact that there was in Raciaz a Jonas Bernbaum, evidently born about 1807, the son of Aron and Chai. So regardless of the 'Jonas' connection in the Koziobrod-Dancyger-Bernbaum analysis above, there is also a Jonas in the Bernbaum family tree. The name Jonas also appears in Raciaz in the Szpigiel family tree, which connects to both the Bernbaum and Dancyger trees.

- 9 It appears that Cukersztein is an alternative surname to Koziobrod. This is made explicit in record #169 where Pessa is listed as Koziobrod vel Cukersztein. The name Koziobrod presumably derives from the town of that name (and which in turn derives its name from a certain mushroom), which was just 8 kms away from Drobin (and about 30 miles from Warsaw). Cukersztein might mean 'sugar stone'. So there's no obvious relationship in the names. The Koziobrod and Cukersztein families have branches starting in the 1820's through the late 1800's (and maybe later). Generally (in fact, with the exception of the death record of Nessa (#155)) Koziobrod shows up after 1828 or so and prior to that, only Cukersztein shows up. It appears that the progenitor of each branch is named Meyer. As far as I can tell, in the Koziobrod branch, Meyer (#155) is referenced as Meyer Jacob and in the Cukersztein branch, Meyer is referenced as Meyer Nuta. In both cases, their wives are Nessa Nussyn. Meyer and Nessa have the same year of birth in both branches. In early records from the 1810-1820 period, there is a Meyer son of Nussyn but he appears to be too old to be one of the above Meyers. That Meyer Nussyn lived at one time in house 45, which was the same house in which Jacob – son of Jonas and Dwojra – died. There is, born in 1838, a Nuta Jonas Meyer Koziobrod (#159). This would tend to enforce the notion that perhaps Meyer was really Meyer Nuta. Based on all of this analysis, I will assume in this document that Cukersztein is Koziobrod, and that Meyer's name was Meyer Nuta.
- 10 Family tree #3 is of interest because Meyer Prusak's descendants (with both of his wives) were descendants of Jonas.
- 11 Family tree #4 is of limited interest. In item #218 appears the death certificate of an unknown child of Hana and Szulim Cieslak. The event occurs in the home of Hersz Szpira. Elsewhere, Hana is given as Hana Hersz. I originally made an assumption that Hana is the daughter of Hersz Szpira. This assumption was bolstered by the fact that one of her children is named Szulim, which is also the name of Hersz Szpira's father-in-law. However, in record #227 it shows that Hana's surname is Kotlarczyk – a name common in Ciechanow but not appearing elsewhere in Drobin. I've moved this entire branch into a separate tree, probably not related to Rabbi Jonas.
- 12 Family tree #5 is of interest as follows: I have added that tree for Drobin descendants of Pinchus Joachim/Jechiel (#231) who was an innkeeper. Joachim's Hebrew name (as seen in several signatures) is Jechiel and in several records his name appears to be Jochil rather than Jochan. I have changed references to Joachim, to Jechiel and therefore the following conjecture in parentheses is highly likely to be irrelevant and wrong. [Aron of Fuerth is believed to have had a son Jochanan, who was father of Zelig (Wohlmuth) and Aron (of Copenhagen). I am hypothesizing that the same Jochanan was the father of Pinchus of Drobin. There isn't much to support this hypothesis.] Pinchus and his descendants appear to be somewhat intertwined with the descendants of Rabbi Jonas of Drobin. In particular, some of them lived in Pinchus's home. Also, Pinchus sometimes is known as Ciechanow, suggesting his origins in Chiechanow.

- 13 Family tree #6 is of interest as follows: I don't plan to fill out the tree, but its purpose is to follow the first name Medel (#234) which, like Jonas and Nachman and Szmaja and Jechiel and Pinchus, is a 'rare' name (so I hypothesize that all early occurrences in Drobin are related to one another). Pinchus Jechiel (#231) and various people with the name Medel, lived in one another's homes. The tree for Icyk (#233) shows the relationship between Pinchus' wife (Bajla (#231) Mosze (#232)) and the name Medel (#234) (her uncle). The son, Medel (#232), of Pinchus was presumably named after the uncle Medel (#234) of Pinchus's wife. He (#234) died in 1810 and Medel (#232) – the son of Pinchus – was born in 1812. As of 1/1/16, it isn't certain that there was only a single Medel from the early 1700's. Based on relationship information contained in the records, we can be fairly certain that Hersz (#238), Nachman (#262) and Abraham (#263) are all brothers (although Nachman and Hersz appear to have different mothers – neither of them Haia (#234)). Hersz and Icyk (#235) are both living in the same house (and in another record, Icyk is a witness for Hersz), so we can conclude that Icyk is also a brother (unless there are two Hersz's). According to the records, Nachman (#262) was born at about the same time as Medel (#234) (next in this discussion). That causes a serious problem with the interpretation of having only a single Medel. We also can be fairly certain that at the time of their deaths, Medel was married to Haja. However, Hersz (#238) was living in the same house as Szlama (#236) so we can conclude that Hersz was Szlama's brother. Unless there are two Hersz's, that would then connect Szlama to the others (Nachman, etc.). At this time, there is nothing to rule out two separate Hersz's (each a son of a different Medel). However, that seems somewhat unlikely. Rywka (#242) is also living in the same house as Szlama, so she is presumably a sister. Also, since she has named a daughter Haja (#244), she may also have the same mother as Szlama. There is no independent relationship information for Jochwet (#245). There is no independent relationship for Wolek (#254). The surname Tchorek is associated with the first group (Abraham, Nachman and Hersz). As Nachman is a rare name, we might further speculate that there is some deep connection between Rabbi Jonas and either Medel or Nachman's mother. Based on all this analysis, I will change Nachman's age at death to be 60, and I will use birth years to infer the correct mother-associations.
- 14 Certain houses are inhabited by various family members. One house (#59) is that of Icyk Medel and later Icyk Tchorek. Inhabitants have included Meyer Zatok and Nachman Wulf and Lewek Jacob (husband of Fajgel, daughter of Jonas). Other combinations include Haia Medel and Lewek Jacob, etc.
- 15 Family tree #7 doesn't seem to have any direct connection to the family of JD, but their names tend to crop up in the same records as names from JD's family.
- 16 Family tree #8 is of interest because of the surname Iwan (surname of one of JD's sons). This tree originates in the town of Sierpc, but was noticed because Icyk Jacob (#336) was married in Drobin. The name "Iwan" could potentially derive from the name Jonas so it's possible that this tree descends from JD. However, the dates don't line up to the Iwan sub-tree (see record #13) of JD's descendants, so if tree #8 descends from JD, then Lewin (#333) would be a son or son-in-law of JD. As of 1/30/2017, a cursory examination of Sierpc patronymic records (1808 – 1825) doesn't reveal any interesting occurrences of the name Jonas, nor death records of Lewin.

17 Jonas Weinberg of Kozienice was the son of Abraham and Fajga. Fajga was the son of David and Serka. Serka was the daughter of Lewek. I would hypothesize that Jonas Weinberg is a descendant of JD, but the dates don't work out well. Abraham Weinberg's birth date, based on the record of his death, was 1740. It would be consistent with the birthdate of his son, Jonas, that Abraham (and also Fajga) could have been born as late as about 1760. David and Serka would each have to be born earlier than about 1720 through 1740. For the Weinbergs to have descended from JD, David and/or Serka would have to be born closer to 1740. Serka is the daughter of Lewek. So she can't be the descendant of Jonas. That would make David the son of Jonas. However, the name David doesn't (as of 10/17) seem to appear in the Drobin family tree of other descendants of Jonas. The other possibility is that Abraham's wife Fajga was a descendant of Jonas. She could not have been a daughter of JD's because he already had a different daughter named Fajga. However, she could have been a grand-daughter of JD's.

Items for further research

- Information about Jonatan of Drobin is contained in various rabbinical sources. These need to be examined carefully both for consistency and for accuracy of inferences. Here are some specific questions I have:
  - Does anything mention his relationship to the Maggid of Kozienice?
  - He is listed as the son of Aron, but evidently that has been questioned. What was the basis of believing he is the son of Aron?
  - I can't remember if there is something indicated that Jonathan died young (and if so, what was it).
- Chaya Sura's father was Icyk Jacob HaLevi. It's interesting to note that the combination Icyk Jacob is quite common in Drobin, and even in the family trees in this document. However, I've seen no indications, in the records, of the designation HaLevi. I suppose it could appear in a signature but I'm not sure I would have recognized it (especially amongst the more scribbled signatures), so it's probably worth reviewing all records below for signatures to see if there is a HaLevi family branch. It might also be worth searching for Drobin in the hebrewbooks.org site.
- Search the Sierpc patronymic records for more evidence of descent from JD. Look for the death of Lewin Iwan (#333) or for the birth of anyone named Jonas.
- Examine the record of Jacob's (#1) death. The signature appears to be Nachman Wulf but confirm that.
- There is a birth record (1832 akta 1) of Chaim Szpira. His father doesn't appear to be given, although the birth record has some Hebrew marginal note that I can't make out, and the index for that year claims his father is Mosze. His mother is Sura Finkelsztajn and the record is witnessed by Jonas Goldszlak. Examine what the marginal note says.

End Notes

<sup>i</sup> Nachman (#1), son of Jacob (#1), is the first witness in the record of Jacob's death. However, the signature (only in Hebrew) is Nachman Wulf. I have not found any other allusions to a Nachman son of Jacob, but there are many references to a Nachman Wulf. Certainly Nachman Wulf shows up as a witness in a great many records involving descendants of Jonas. However, it's mysterious why the second name Wulf is used rather than Jacob in the record of Jacob's death. One possibility is that Nachman had the double name Nachman Wulf, and that he simply signed with that name and did not use the patronymic. The other possibility is that Jacob was actually Wulf Jacob or Jacob Wulf, and that in his death record, only the name "Jacob" was used. Again, since Nachman used the name Wulf, one might think that if the clerk had only been given one of Wulf Jacob's two names, then the name Wulf would have been used rather than Jacob. More importantly, I have found a record of the death of Wulf Neyman (#68). There seems to be a lot of evidence for Nachman Wulf to have become Nachman Neyman, so it seems as though there was a separate Wulf. For the trees listed, I'll assume that there are two different people (see #68).

<sup>ii</sup> The death record of Gitl Eliaz (#3) Szpira, shows that she is married to Mosze and that she has 7 children. It then appears to list 8 children. Gitl's husband, in every other record, is listed as Abraham (#3). Furthermore, she had a son (#58) – who only survived a year – named Mosze. We wouldn't expect her husband to name his child Mosze if one of his names was Mosze, but I suppose it's a possibility. As for the 7 – 8 children, perhaps a couple of names should be double-names. So, for example, the names Haim and Hersz are listed separately, but according to other records there is a son named Haim Hersz (#39).

<sup>iii</sup> Record #326 shows Szapsa, born in 1843, as the son of Tanchum and Gitl. Tanchum's first wife was Szajna Gitl (#4), who died in 1837. In record #326, Tanchum's age is given as 20, making him born in 1843, six years after Gitl's death. So either Szajna Gitl (#4) is different than Gitl (#326) or else Szapsa in record #326 was at least 26 years old. I've concluded the former.

<sup>iv</sup> Regarding the sons of Gitl Eliaz Szpira (#3) as listed in the death record, the names Jacob and Leyzor are listed separately but according to the birth record of Jacob (#6), his full name was Jacob Lazl (#6) (which I took to be Leyzor). However, according to the interpretation below, Jacob Lazl (#6) had a son with the dual name Icyk Jacob (#175). In that record (and all other records associated with #6), the name of #6 is given as Leyzor. It seems unusual that if #6 was actually a Jacob that his son would have had – as part of his name – the name 'Jacob'. In addition, when Abraham married a second time, he had another son named Jacob (#122). That also is somewhat inconsistent with #6. I can't come up with a plausible alternative interpretation. One possible but not completely helpful interpretation would be that Jacob Lazl died young, and that his second name wasn't really Leyzor. Even so, that still leaves the question of the naming of #122. Another possible but unlikely explanation is that there were two Abraham Szpira's born roughly the same time.

<sup>v</sup> I've made adjustments to the birth-date of Ezyk (#13) and the birth-date of Jonas (#9). Since Ezyk is the son of Jonas (#1) – assumed to be JD – and Jonas (#9) is assumed to be the grandson of JD, then (a) JD must have been alive when Ezyk was conceived and (b) JD must have been dead when Jonas (#9) was named. Therefore Jonas (#9) must have been born either at the same time (perhaps as much as 9 months earlier) or later than Ezyk. Among the many inferences for both their ages, it's possible to come up with years that are consistent with the above conclusions. Those are not the years I would have obtained 'on average'. From all that, I would conclude that JD died approximately 1768.

<sup>vi</sup> In JRI, a child of Gutman and Dwojra Korzekronowski (see #20) [Dwojra is a descendant of Fajga Jonas] married Elias Szpira (which I've inferred to be from the family of Tanchum, in the JRI records)

<sup>vii</sup> The name Jonas Lis is taken to be Jonas Fux (record #22) although the evidence is not completely compelling. In the death record of Jonas Lis, it appears that his late wife was Tekla and not Henrietta. There are records showing a Jonas Lipman. There are a few records that show up of a Jonas Fux (aka Fuchs) (#22) born approximately 1770. He was married to Henrietta (#22), daughter of Mosze. There is also a match between the birth of Jonas Lipman's son Ezyk (#56) and the later death of Jonas Fux's son Ezyk. I have therefore equated Jonas Fux to Jonas, son of Lipman (#22). There is a death record from 1835 (on film 729204, akta 14) of Jonas Lis, age 50 and married to Tekla (or a name that is similar to that). It's possible that this is the death record of Jonas Fux (#22), since the age is about the same. However, Jonas Fux's wife had been Henrietta, so it doesn't seem that this is the same as Tekla.

<sup>viii</sup> If the dates given are correct for Lipman Haim (#30), then Haim would have been born too early to have been a son of Jonas (#1) and Dwojra. In that case, the descent from Jonas would have to be from Lipman's wife (unidentified). Lipman himself could have been a brother of Hudes (#13), the wife of Icyk Jonas (#13). Her father was Haim Mejer and her mother was Ester, daughter of Leyzor (aka Lipman). This would fit with the fact that Lipman had a grand-daughter Ester Malka (#36). And Lipman's name would come from Ester's father Leyzor. On the other hand, the name Meyer doesn't appear amongst Lipman's children or grandchildren. Perhaps that's not a big issue since the name also doesn't appear amongst Icyk Jonas's descendants (as of 10/18/15). On the other hand, if the dates for Lipman Haim are incorrect, then given the known birthdates of his children, he could have been born as late as 1762, making Haim's birthdate as late as 1744, which would be consistent with Haim's father being Jonas. Final comment on this. In the record (#57) of birth of Lipman's grandson Abraham Leib, there is a witness Haim Ruven, of age 67. With a bit of a stretch (both on the age of Haim Ruven and the birthdate of Haim, father of Lipman), one might imagine that Haim Ruven was the father of Lipman – making both above interpretations incorrect.

<sup>ix</sup> The Drobin records show at least two "Jacob Wulf's" of similar ages. In most records, one of the names is shown as Jacob Wolek Lewkowicz (#46), who is listed as a merchant. The other name is shown as Jacob Wulf, listed as a master craftsman. They have two different wives (who overlap each other during the times they are giving birth), proving there are two different people. Sometimes the Wolf and Wolek are interchanged. Both have similar signatures – Jacob Wulf (no mention of Wolek or Lewek). In one record, #88 birth record, the person known elsewhere as Jacob Wolek Lewkowicz, is listed as Jacob Wolkowicz. My conclusion is that both are Jacob, son of Wolf. The one named Lewkowicz, is Jacob, son of Wolf, son of Lewek. Perhaps the adoption of the surname Lewkowicz was to avoid being confused with the other Jacob Wolf. There is also a slightly younger Jacob Wulf, who appears unrelated to the other two. Incidentally, there might be some reason to think the other two are related (they each witness relatives of Rabbi Jonas) but there isn't any known link. There's also a very confusing set of records regarding Jacob Wulf Neyman and Jacob Wulf, son of Lewek. The second of these turns out to be Jacob Wulf Gracz. The name Gracz shows up as the surname of Malka (#160) married into the family tree of Jacob (#1). There is also a birth record from 1859 (akta 6) showing the birth of Mosze Jonas, son of Royza Gracz age 24, and Hersz Orlovski age 40. Nothing further is documented here about this particular family, but my assumption is that the name "Jonas" heralds a descendant of JD. What is new here, is that the 'other' Jacob Wulf is now known to be the son of Lewek. In addition to the records shown here, there is a record of a marriage of 1821 in 50/347/0/-/21, akta 6. That record shows a Jacob Wulf, son of Wulf Lewek – both master craftsmen. Jacob is age 52, a widower, whose mother is something like Szajdla Jacob (the first name is somewhat illegible but it definitely isn't Baila). It also says that his former wife was Bayla Manas, which is indeed – according to the previous note – the wife of the ‘other’ Jacob Wulf. He is the groom in this record and the bride is Hana Migdal Jacobowicz, a widow (I believe her former husband was Jacob), daughter of Migdal Icyk and Gitl Haim.

<sup>x</sup> The name Jacob Lewek appears with at least four different wives (three are noted below – the other is Frajda). I believe that Frajdl (#52) was married to a different Jacob Lewek than #17. Her daughter Blima was born during the time that Jacob (#17) and Dwojra (#26) were having children. The Drobin records show at least one other Jacob Lewek (about 20 years younger than #17) so he could have been the one married to Frajdl.

<sup>xi</sup> In item #57, the death record of Abraham (#57) has a substantial amount of material which has far-reaching implications for the genealogy of the Lipman-Haim branch of this family tree. Jacob Furszt, in house 79, is the same person noted elsewhere (including the birth record of Abraham (#57)) as the son-in-law of Lipman. His wife, Sura, is the daughter of Lipman (this is noted in the birth records of children born both before and after Abraham). But in item #57, she is listed as Sura Lis. In the same item, Jacob Lis (who signs his name) is the grandfather of Abraham. We know that Jacob Furszt’s father is Berek and that Lipman is the father of Sura, so at first glance, Jacob Lis can’t be the grandfather. However, his surname Lis is the same as Sura’s, so he must be Sura’s father. There is one other record – the birth record of Ester Malka (#36), daughter of Sura – where Sura may be shown as the daughter of Jacob rather than Lipman (hard to tell if the surname means ‘wife of Jacob’ as opposed to ‘daughter of Jacob’.) In any case, I’ve inferred that Lipman Haim is actually Jacob Lipman, son of Haim, with surname Lis. There are other records of people with the surname Lis. I have made the assumption that these are all descendants of Jacob Lipman. It indeed turns out that these sometimes live in houses owned by other known members of the family of JD, or sometimes are either witnesses to someone in JD’s family, or sometimes are witnessed by someone in JD’s family.

<sup>xii</sup> Since Meyer’s death record only lists a single son as being alive, all other sons died before 1855 and that is indicated individually for those sons.

<sup>xiii</sup> For record #68, my interpretation is that the surname Koziobrod goes with Lewek and not with Hudes. In the usual convention, if Hudes’ surname was Koziobrod, then it would have been written Hudes z’ Koziobrod malzonkow Neyman. However, the record says Lewka i Chodes malzonkow Koziobrodakich – malzonkow means ‘married couple’. The name Koziobrod is likely to be ‘locative’, although there isn’t any record that I’ve found, of a Jewish community in Koziobrod.

<sup>xiv</sup> Both Ezyk (#69) and Szlama (#74), sons of Wulf (#68) appear to be named after the father of Bajla. In different records, Bajla is listed as Bajla Icyk and separately as Bajla Szlama. I’ve made the assumption that we’ve identified the right family and that Wulf only married one Bajla, in which case the only interpretation consistent with data is that Bajla’s father was Szlama Icyk (or Icyk Szlama).

<sup>xv</sup> Some records appear to show Ruchla Haim rather than Malka Haim. It turns out that for most cases, Lewek Wulf has the profession ‘furman’, but in the cases where his wife is Ruchla, his profession is ‘krawiec’ and also his age – as well as his wife’s – is a bit older. To further complicate matters, there are two sons named Abraham and born 6 years apart. Based on all this, it’s likely that there are two individuals named Lewek Wulf, one married to Ruchla Haim and the other married to Malka Haim. One of those (the one married to Malka) has the surname Neyman.

<sup>xvi</sup> I have not entered a record for the death of Sosia Bajla (#85) Iwan at age 3, because that would be inconsistent with her marriage at age 19. The record is 50/347/0/-/24 death akta 53 showing Sosia Bajla, age 3, in house 64 deceased of parents Ezyk Iwan age 53 and Hudes Haim. I’ve examined the birth record and marriage record and see no inconsistencies in those, so either the death or marriage record is wrong (fraudulent?)

<sup>xvii</sup> There is a record of a Szlama Wulf who is a witness in the birth of Josef Flum (#94) and his inferred birth year from that record is 1776. However, Szlama (#74) was born about 1800. I will presume there isn't any relationship between the two Szlama Wulf's.

<sup>xviii</sup> I have identified, in #99 and #470, Mindel Bratsztajn with Mindel Eyzensztajn. The assumption was clerical error. Both Hersz and Mindel have the same ages as Hersz Neyman and Mindel Bratsztajn. Furthermore, there are no other known records, as of 1/20/2017, mentioning the combination of Hersz Neyman and Mindel Eyzensztajn. Finally, there is anecdotal evidence that Abraham Leib was the brother of Hil. On the other hand, Hersz and Mindel Bratsztajn gave birth several years earlier, to an Abraham Chaver (#472) (the second name is unclear), which is peculiar if they also had a son named Abraham Leib.

<sup>xix</sup> As of 1/20/2017, descendants and wife of Hersz Neyman #99, are speculative. I don't have documentation showing that the family of either Hersz and Mindel Bratsztajn or Hersz and Mindel Eyzensztajn, are descendants of Jacob and Perla Marya.

<sup>xx</sup> I am assuming that Hersz Bratsztajn is the same as in #73, but that Golda is a later wife.

<sup>xxi</sup> Since Szmaja is a rare name, I have inferred that Juda Szmaja (mentioned in #104) is related to Szmaja Israel (#203). Note that Juda Szmaja would have had to be born before about 1797 and therefore his father Szmaja would have had to be born before about 1779. It's then likely that the two Szmaja's were cousins. The most likely way this could happen would be for Israel (#202) Lis's wife Bajla to be the daughter of Szmaja. Juda (in #104) was married to Nany Israel. They adopted the surname Szwarc.

<sup>xxii</sup> I had speculated that Gutman and Dwojra Korzurzek, who appear in record #125, were the same as Gutman and Dwojra Korzecranowski (#20). However, I have the death record of Dwojra Kozuszek (who I presume to be the same person who appears in record #125) from Film 1201496 death akta 12 in 1866. Her parents were Leib and Rechla, her age was 53 and her husband was Gutman. This appears distinct from the Korzecranowki family.

<sup>xxiii</sup> Meyer Jacob Prusak (#126) was the father-in-law of Ezyk (#13). Meyer's second wife Ruchla (#126), was the daughter of Mosze. Meyer and Ruchla had a son Jacob Jonas (#140). I therefore speculate that Mosze was the son of JD. It would make sense that Meyer could have married JD's grand-daughter.

<sup>xxiv</sup> The wife, Hai (#138) of Szmul Prusak, might have her father's name as Tanchun. It could fit the spelling in the record of birth of Icyk Jacob.

<sup>xxv</sup> Even though the marriage record of the son, Hersz Meyer (#141) son of Jacob Jonas (#140) Prusak, lists Jacob's wife as Malka Frederika (#140), I've chosen not to use that as her real name. Reasons are given in the writeup of the marriage record of Hersz Meyer to Frajdl (#141).

<sup>xxvi</sup> The death record of Ezyk Prusak (#147) is almost illegible (the 1830 index confirms the name as Ezyk Prusak). He could be the son of Jacob (#126). This would also be substantiated somewhat by the fact, noted above, that house #89 evidently 'belonged' to an Ezyk Prusak (see record of birth of Jonas Jacob (#156)).

<sup>xxvii</sup> There is an 1826 death record of Laja Fux (#193). That record has no other information. I will assume that Jonas (#22) and Henrietta (#22) are the progenitors of the Fux line, and that therefore Laja is their daughter.

<sup>xxx</sup> Aron is inferred to be the son of Wulf Neyman for the main reason that there aren't many people descended from a Wulf of the appropriate age, and also because Aron shows up as witness in records generally related to the Neyman or JD family

<sup>xxxi</sup> The father of Necha (#292) is usually given as Juda, although it is once given as Jacob. I have indicated it as Juda Jacob, but perhaps the name Jacob was just a clerk's transcription error.

<sup>xxxii</sup> As of 1/24/2016, I have guessed that Leyzor Neyman (#328) is the son of Nachman (#62). That's based on the name of Leyzor's son Nachman Wulf (#329).

<sup>xxxiii</sup> I have identified Chaia Laja Prusak (#354) as the daughter of Szmul (#138) and Raca (#150). However, it appears that Chaia Laja is from Plock (but was married in Szrensk) and not Drobin. Furthermore, the name in the marriage record, of Szmul's wife, is Royza rather than Raca. So it's possible tht Chaia Laja is the daughter of a Prusak from Plock – instead of the Prusak from Drobin.

<sup>xxxiv</sup> In record #357, Sura's surname is given as Ajbarter whereas in the marriage record (#122) it is given as Gluchy. I have opted in favor of the marriage name but it is possible that Josef Haim's mother is different than that of Mordka (#123) and even possible that the fathers are also different.

<sup>xxxv</sup> Record #358 is an inference. Marriage and birth record #359 gives Haskiel's father as lcyk. His son is Leyzor. We could infer that lcyk is a son of Mosze (#240) or a grandson. I've chose Leyzor (#283) as the most likely father of Haskiel, but I haven't seen any supporting (or unsupporting) evidence in the JRI indices or elsewhere. It is, however, worth noting that Mosze's other children are born long before lcyk, so it's unlikely that lcyk is a son of Mosze.

<sup>xxxvi</sup> I've identified Sura Arbeiter with Sura Gluchy, partly because I can't find references to any other Gluchy (so probably have mis-spelled the name in the record). However, the surnames don't resemble each other, so Jacob Szpira could have had 2 different wives named Sura.

- a. <sup>xxxvii</sup> Here is the information on Hersz's signature, as analyzed by Heshel Teitelbaum: . I read the first word to be Ne'um (i.e nun-aleph-vav-mem sofit, which means "attested by" . ) If I didn't know what it was supposed to say, I would not have been able to guess the last letter correctly. This is followed by "Tzvi Hirsch". The last letter definitely looks like a shin; but with the long tail -- who knows, maybe it's an incomplete tzadi sofit, except for the fact that the text of the record does say Erszek (in Latin script.) This is followed by beis-mem-heh. This is an acronym for Ben Moreinu Harav, i.e. the son of our teacher the Rabbi. Normally, a multi-letter acronym has a two-stroke apostrophe before the last letter, indicating an acronym. A two-letter acronym would have only a one-stroke acronym. If we read this as beis-mem-heh, there would be no apostrophe.

But if we consider the two short vertical lines to be the two-stroke apostrophe, then I can imagine a low amplitude curve that could be a sloppy mem. In any case, these three letters are what you would expect to see before the name of a Rabbi. I might have been tempted to read that acronym as Ben HaRav, as opposed to Ben Moreinu HaRav, except that in that case there would be only one stroke apostrophe, whereas we see two. The next word is Tanchum. And finally the last word is Kohen or HaKohen, depending on how you read the first letter of the last word.
